MASS TRANSIT — The corner of Citrus and College in Covina was a busy place in the Valley's early days. It boasted the solid-looking First National Bank. In the same building were the C.H. Kistler store and the offices of an osteopath. But there was time enough to stop and have a picture taken while traveling on the Covina Transfer wagon.